Five local men rescue driver from lake

by MATT JAMES Times Staff

A 24-year-old man was saved from drowning on Monday thanks to the quick thinking of five local men.

The men – one of them only 17 – were able to pull Stratford, Ont. resident Craig Riehl from his vehicle after it left the roadway going around a turn and landed on its roof in the waters of Minden Lake.

Terry Prentice was the first on the scene. He was working on a landscaping job on Horseshoe Lake Road with his brother Tom Jr. and Jeff Black. At approximately 8:45 on Monday morning, Terry was on his way back to town to pick up a few supplies when he saw a vehicle upside down in the water.

Terry, realizing there was at least one person in the vehicle, quickly radioed his brother, Tom Jr., who was only minutes up the road.

"Terry called me and said, 'There's a car in the lake, I need help!'" his brother says.

Tom Jr. and Black, who, like Terry, are volunteer firefighters, jumped into their truck and sped towards the scene.

Meanwhile 17-year-old Derek Carpenter and his friend, 18-year-old Davis Reynolds, were on their way to work when Terry Prentice flagged them down.

What could have been a tragedy on Monday turned into a rescue by five brave local men when 24-year-old Craig Riehl's car left the road and hurtled into Minden Lake. From left, Derek Carpenter phoned 911 while Jeff Black, Terry Prentice, Tom Prentice Jr., and Davis Reynolds each did his part to break into the submerged car and pull Riehl safely onto the bank.

Doctor recruitment efforts stretched thin

by JENN WATT
Times Staff

Haliburton County's volunteer doctor-recruitment committee is stretched as thin as it can go without hiring someone to take on part of the work, the head of the family health team and key member of the committee says.

Beth Archibald is a nurse who leads the team of physicians, nurses and allied health professionals at the Haliburton clinic. She also participates in the Local Health Integrated Network board for Haliburton's region, holds a seat on the Haliburton Highlands Health Services corporation and recruits doctors in what time is left. She says one possible next step in the struggle to find physicians would be to pay someone to do it.

"The committee has probably some of the busiest people who live in our community. Other communities – and I think for the most part they are larger – have hired a designated half-time physician recruiter. That's the challenge. You have a bunch of really busy people who are doing their best and their darnedest to do what they can and fit it in around everything else they're supposed to be doing. It's a hard job," she said.

Board rescinds recommendation to close half of county's libraries

by JENN WATT
Times Staff

The official motion to reduce Haliburton's libraries from eight to four by January 2009 will likely be wiped from the books at the next county council meeting after the library board voted unanimously Wednesday to recommend rescinding it.

After public consultations in the winter revealed strong public opposition to the county council directive to provide staffing and books for only one branch per municipality, the library board will now recommend to council that it hold off on any decision until 2010.

"The resolution basically rescinds the original motion to start with because that's an impossible timeline right now," said library board chairperson Cheryl Murdoch, who noted that it is still tentative, since it hasn't been passed at county council yet.

"In the fall of 2010, which is basically coming to the end of our elected term, the two big libraries [in Minden and Haliburton] will be up and running and we would like to see what impact the two big libraries have on the smaller ones as far as usage," she said.

Minden Hills and Dysart et al both only have one library to start with and are both building much larger facilities in the coming year. Minden has just broken ground beside the Cultural Centre.

Some predict that the new, larger libraries will draw patrons away from the much smaller branches in Stanhope in Algonquin Highlands, and Harcourt and Wilberforce in Highlands East.

"The impact on the Dorset library will probably be no impact at all because people aren't going to be going down to Minden library. ... Certainly that will have an impact on some smaller libraries in Highlands East and perhaps Stanhope as well," said Jan McDonald, leader of the Algonquin Co-operative Development Corporation. She has lobbied for the Dorset library branch and was at Wednesday night's meeting.

The resolution, moved by Highlands East deputy-reeve Jim Mackie and seconded by Janet Hamden, was passed by all board members save for vice-chair Tom Gardner, who was absent.

Murdoch said that it was always the intention of the library board to make a decision about the impending deadline for closing branches, but hadn't scheduled a time to pass a resolution. When a delegation from Dorset including Rob Walisser, McDonald and Algonquin Highlands councillor Diane Griffin came to the meeting, it was as good a time as any to make a decision.

"I had basically said to them I want a recommendation from this group and they basically said that night, why not do it now?" Murdoch said.

Walisser, who made a brief presentation at the meeting, said that he is pleased with the outcome and that it took very little prodding to get the board to make the resolution.

"They initially said to me they were planning on dealing with this in September and I said to them that leaves the timelines very tight. What do we go back and tell the citizens of our town? We pushed a little bit, not very hard, and they dealt with it that night," Walisser said.

The library board recommendation must now be voted on by county council at its meeting on Wednesday, July 23.

On Friday, July 11 in the early morning hours an officer stopped a vehicle on South Lake Road just outside of Minden. The officer had a conversation with the driver and subsequently arrested the 30-year-old man and charged him with Impaired Driving.

The man, a resident of Minden Hills, will appear in court on September 3 in relation to the charges.

Also on Friday, July 11, shortly before 4 p.m. an officer responded to a driving complaint and stopped a vehicle on Highway 35 near Ransley Road. The driver subsequently failed a roadside screening device test. The driver was arrested and taken to the Haliburton Highlands detachment.

Charged with Impaired Driving, Driving Over 80mgs and having open liquor in a motor vehicle is a 30-year-old man of Bradford. He will be appearing in Minden court on August 6 in relation to the charges.

Officers from the Haliburton Highlands would like to remind the public that they are encouraged to report all impaired drivers by calling the OPP communications centre at 1-888-310-1122, *OPP on your cell phone, or 911 in emergency situations.

Martha Perkins/TIMES

"I'm in heaven," Jean Woodliffe says of life at her cottage on Kushog Lake. "In fact, if heaven's not as good as this I'm not going."

With the help of family and organizations such as ParaMed and Community Care, Mrs. Woodliffe can spend her summers at the cottage she built with her late husband, Joe, even though she turns 100 this week.

"I don't think about getting old," she says. "It just happens. You accept. You can't do anything about it so make the best of it. After all, that's life. It comes to us all."

THE GIFT OF SIMPLICITY

Jean Woodliffe will celebrate her 100th birthday today in much the same way she lives her life – without much fuss or fanfare, writes Martha Perkins

'Tis the gift to be simple, 'tis the gift to be free,

'Tis the gift to come down where we ought to be,

And when we find ourselves in the place just right,

'Twill be in the valley of love and delight.

Simple Gifts, a Quaker hymn, 1848

Jean Woodliffe is sitting in the front porch of what a real estate agent, in a vain attempt to give it more charm, might call a "vintage cottage." In truth, the cottage is plain. It's plain on the outside, plain on the inside. Anything that's new was likely a gift; everything else seems circa 1957, when Jean and her late husband Joseph built the cottage. There have been some updates – isn't that panelling from the 1970s? – but even those improvements were kept modest.

The living room is a misnomer. It's in this screened-in porch that Mrs. Woodliffe does most of her living. There's no television because these windows provide entertainment enough. A hummingbird flits to a tree branch two metres from where she's sitting. It comes to a dead stop, cocks its head to look at her, and then flies to the feeder hanging under the eave.

The leaves on the trees are dancing in the wind while down below, the waters of Kushog Lake shimmy to the same tune. A kayaker paddles by.

Mrs. Woodliffe sits, she looks, and she absorbs everything about the glorious world around her.

"I'm in heaven," she says. "In fact, if heaven's not as good as this I'm not going."

Her favourite chair is old but, like many things built in its day, it is sturdy and still very comfortable. She wishes that its companion couch had lasted as long but, she says, it's not worth buying a new one. At 99, one doesn't make too many big purchases.

Today – Wednesday, July 16 – Mrs. Woodliffe is turning 100. She'll do it, she hopes, with little fanfare or fuss. Some of her family will be there, which she is looking forward to, but she doesn't want a party.

Her lack of enthusiasm for such a milestone comes, in part, from her belief that she's done nothing to deserve any praise for such longevity. She was simply lucky to be born into a family with good genes. Sure she's never smoked, and only occasionally had a drink, but her father smoked a pipe until he died at age 98. A grandmother lived to 102. So why should she take any of the credit for turning 100?

"I don't think about getting old," she says. "It just happens. You accept. You can't do anything about it so make the best of it. After all, that's life. It comes to us all."

There is a sense of calm about Mrs. Woodliffe. Her mind is active but she is at peace with herself and her life thus far. And although she's tiny, like the hummingbird, there's something incredibly solid about her. She'd tell you that she was simply born with a happy disposition but there's more to it than that. She's learned to accept things as they are instead of wish for what might or should have been.

So even though she doesn't like the infirmities that come with age – the slowness of her motions, the unsteadiness of her hands, the pains in her hips and knees – you'll never hear her complain about them. Instead she's given way to them and accommodated them. There are magnifying glasses to help her read her daily Toronto Star. Two years ago, when she gave up her driver's licence, she donated her car to the Stanhope fire department so they could use it to practise crash rescues. She lives on her own, both in Haliburton and in Stoney Creek, but she gladly accepts the help of services such as Paramed and Community Care.

There are sadnesses that she's had to endure but she doesn't let them overwhelm her. Her husband Joseph, who was her best friend, died 18 years ago. Four years later, her daughter Jane died of cancer. Her sister Queenie has died, as have most of her friends.

You can't live to be 100 without saying a lot of goodbyes.

"You meet it," she says of the deep sense of loss that comes with the death of someone you love dearly. "They say that times heals. It doesn't heal. It makes you accustomed to the situation..."

"When Joe died it was extremely sudden. Someone asked me how I was getting along and I said I was getting along exactly the same way I was when he was alive. You should keep your grief and your woe to yourself and not inflict it on other people. It helped me and it helped my kids because you couldn't do anything about it any way. Surely you have enough strength in you to meet the situation - or maybe it's just stubbornness."

Stubbornness maybe, but this is a woman who's lived through the death of her mother when she was only nine, the Great Depression, two world wars, a technological revolution and a shift away from many of the values that defined her world.

She was born Jean Foote on July 16, 1908 in Port Arthur, which is now part of Thunder Bay. Her father was a merchant and many of her relatives were involved in navigating the Great Lakes. As a result, she had access to things that many others didn't, especially fresh fruits and produce that passed through the port on their journey across the country.

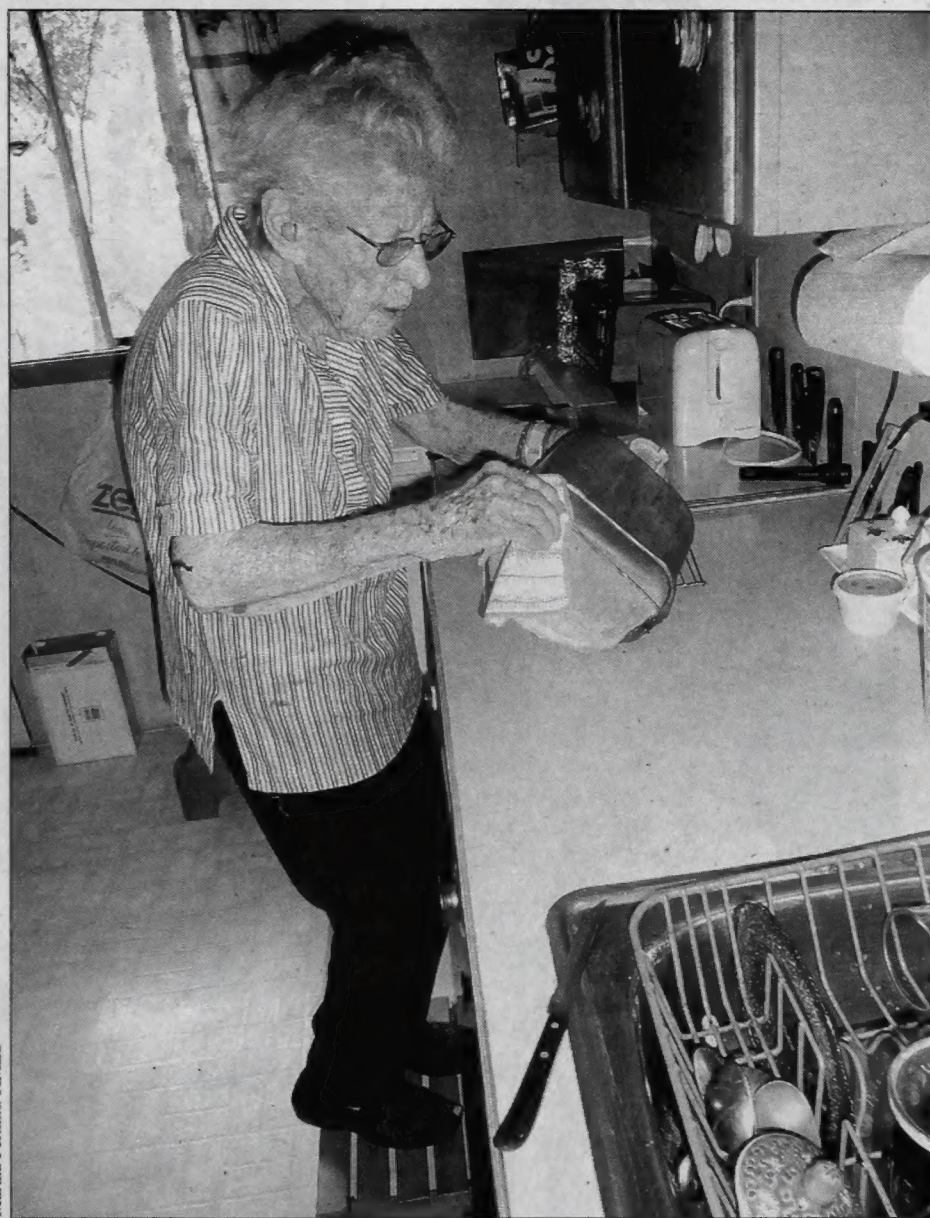

"We lived frugally but my dad must have been very comfortable because we lacked for nothing. I would say we lived graciously but there was nothing excessive."

There was Jean, a sister Queenie and another sister Katharine. It was when giving birth to a fourth sister, Elizabeth, that Jean's mother died. The baby died that day. Jean was nine.

"It was terribly hard," she says. "My grandparents and dad's sister came and lived with us until my dad remarried three years later."

Eventually, the family moved to Toronto,

It's amazing how small life's pleasures can be where Jean went to business school to become a stenographer. She was working in the office at Canadian Packing Company (Maple Leaf Foods) when she met Joseph Woodliffe, a young man her age who'd been born in Fairbanks (now a part of Toronto). When her family carried on to Montreal, she stayed behind to be with Joseph.

"I was afraid to tell my dad I was going to marry an Englishman rather than a Scotsman," she laughs. The wedding was at her grandmother's house in August, 1930. "It was supposed to be a garden wedding but it rained."

In those days, a married woman didn't work. She didn't quit her job; everyone just assumed she wasn't coming back after her wedding.

Canada Packers transferred Joe to Hamilton six months later, "which we thought was terrible." But they set up a new life for themselves. Son Jack was born in 1932; Jane was born three years later. Then, in 1940, the Woodliffes bought a house in Stoney Creek, population 800, where they became immersed in community life. Joe, who was in his thirties, had tried to enlist but they turned him down, in part because he was a volunteer firefighter. "They figured anyone with experience firefighting should stay at home because they didn't know what was coming. It turned out to be a blessing. I think it would have devastated him to see the suffering."

In the mid-1950s, "our neighbours across the road all of a sudden wanted a cottage. They decided to get one near Peterborough but Verne, who was in the navy, couldn't tell north from south and instead of going to Peterborough he arrived in Minden."

The neighbour also didn't have a sense of proper construction and did everything wrong when building the cottage. That didn't stop him from wanting to share it with the Woodliffes and one October, when the leaves were virtually bursting with colour, the Woodliffes came to visit. While the women were cleaning up from their picnic lunch, Joe and Verne went for a walk.

"Joe came back all excited. He brought me over to this property and stood me on that point," Mrs. Woodliffe says, pointing to the rocky shore below. "He said, 'If we can get this for $1,000, how about it?'"

She agreed and they went to talk to the owners, Howard and Marie Walker, who lived on the nearby homestead. The Walkers agreed to the price and, the next year, agreed to sell the Woodliffes more of the shoreline.

The drive up Highway 35, which was still gravel, would take more than five hours but once they got here, they revelled in the peace and quiet. Joe, above all, loved that there was no phone, which meant no business pressures. Jean fought the idea of getting a phone for years, but eventually succumbed.

"We enjoyed the life and wanted our children and our children's children to know this life," Mrs. Woodliffe says. "There's value in simplicity. It hasn't been appreciated. Today everything is material. People build these big houses; they're not necessary. They're losing something. I have a motorboat; it's nothing special. It hasn't been out of the boathouse for two years but the canoe's had a work out. You see so much more and hear so much more in a canoe.

Watching the hummingbirds that come to her feeder is more entertaining than any television program could be.

"Life can be so simple if only we make it that way. I'm never lonely and yet I have no friends left, no one other than younger people."

She just lost another friend, Murray Walker, son of Howard and Marie, who'd always drop by to see if she was okay or needed anything.

"He was a conundrum to me," she says. "He could be so fine and so generous and his heart was so good and yet he could be so fierce in his hatreds of things. Murray added to our lives. I never knew anyone like him."

Family was important to the Walkers, who represented an old and reassuring way of life to Mrs. Woodliffe. Every Sunday they'd gather, 20 of them, for a big meal and maybe some music. Mrs. Walker used to can everything and anything, including suckers from the lake. ("If they called them anything other than suckers I could eat them," Mrs. Woodliffe says.)

And as much as Mrs. Woodliffe grieves for the people who have passed from her life, she rejoices in the ones who are still there. She doesn't have to ask people to come for a visit; they want to be with her.

A knock comes to the door. It's her great-grandson Adam Cocks and his girlfriend Michelle Williamson. They've just driven up from Grimsby and will spend the night before going to her family's cottage near Barry's Bay.

Adam is 20 and he's grinning the moment he steps inside. Everything is exactly the way it was since his last visit and it's this familiarity that gives him such joy. "It's everything we got used to as a kid - just the smells, everything," he says. The car ride up also reconnects him with his memories of his grandmother, Mrs. Woodliffe's daughter Jane, and how she used to say, "Go to sleep and you'll be there in no time," every time he asked "Are we there yet?"

Adam's a carpenter and has a long tattoo on his forearm. He smiles sheepishly when he's asked how his great-grandmother responded when she first saw it. "She loves the sentence - 'Dream as if you'll live forever; live as if you'll die tomorrow' - but she doesn't like that it's on my body."

For Mrs. Woodliffe, the tattoo's message is much more than a philosophical quote.

"I'm curious about death," she says. "Why be afraid? It's part of the order of life and it's another thing you can't do anything about. Death is such a conundrum, though. I believe one thing and find fault with that and then say, 'That attitude might have some weight to it.'"

At 100, she's still learning, still absorbing everything and trying to make sense of it. One minute she can be telling you about the flock of bats she saw the other night and the next she's telling you about her fascination with Zimbabwe thanks to her conversations with the Zimbabwean woman who helps her back home in Stoney Creek.

Perhaps most telling is the story she tells you about the bouquet of peonies that her paper man brought her not so long ago.

The flowers were sitting on the table and one afternoon, the sun fell on the leaves in such a way that she noticed a pearl of moisture that sparkled like a ruby. She was transfixed. The colour was so glorious and intriguing that she spent a long time marvelling at such beauty.

She laughs. "That was a tiny thing but it kept me occupied for a while. It was really something."

"It's amazing how small [the things that give you pleasure] can be."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Christmas in July

THE COUNTY LIBRARY BOARD'S DECISION Wednesday to recommend that county council rescind the motion to close four branches as of January 2009 is truly a Christmas present in July.

The gift isn't that the motion was rescinded – although there are many who will rejoice in keeping their dear, tiny, musty branches for a while longer – but rather that we have the rare ability to turn back time.

To raise another cheesy Christmas analogy, the residents of Haliburton County have now seen the ghost of libraries' future and, in awaking from our dream, have the chance to make it right.

We know how it can go, but is that how we want it to go?

Obviously, this is where the comparison ends.

The people of Haliburton aren't like Scrooge and the library board certainly didn't bring a doom-and-gloom future to our library system, but we do have a chance to look into the future and decide whether that is what we want or not.

The recommendation from the library board (which hasn't passed at county council yet) specifies that after the two new libraries are built and operating in Minden and Haliburton, the effects of those branches on the smaller centres of Stanhope, Dorset, Wilberforce, Harcourt, Gooderham and Cardiff can be evaluated.

The board will then recommend in the fall of 2010 which direction to go to the new council.

They will be watching to see if residents of the southern regions of Algonquin Highlands travel farther south to the big Minden library for books. They'll be watching for the same trend in Highlands East.

For the residents of these smaller hamlets, this is a good time to really think about the value of your library branch and to decide which future is best for your community.

Is it an enhanced library with lots of books, light, space and programming, but perhaps more driving? Or is it a smaller, less resourced neighbourhood branch that you can walk to with your kids?

Even better, is there another way to use the resources to benefit our geographically dispersed populations that won't deprive communities of public space, but can provide good programming and open spaces for learning?

Rather than looking at the next year and a half as a reprieve from the branch closures, this time is best spent rallying around these precious resources and building them up to be what they have the potential to be: centres of learning and community activity.

The time can also be spent dreaming of what the ideal library system in Haliburton County would look like.

And once we have that ideal, how can we make it real?

The library board has made the space for these discussions to come to life; all we need to do now is start talking.

MPP can't present petition

To the Editor:

I wish to take this opportunity to provide a response to the article by Jenn Watt that appeared in the July 9, 2008 edition of the Minden Times, with respect to the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario restricting Dr. Bennet Wu's prescriptions of narcotics and controlled substances.

I understand the concerns that residents have and certainly am aware of the need for family doctors in Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock. Each of the areas of this riding, including Haliburton, is faced with a variety of health-care challenges, including doctor shortages.

The petitions received by my office are not something that I would normally read and sign in the provincial legislature, as the profession of physicians is overseen by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

I have sought advice from the Office of the Integrity Commissioner of Ontario who has indicated that "action, in particular with the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, by Ms. Scott may be interpreted as an attempt to interfere with and/or influence the policies and procedures of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, contrary to the Members' Integrity Act."

Revealing masterpieces

RIGHT NOW there's quite a fuss about Leonardo Da Vinci again. Apparently, there's even hope that his long lost masterpiece, The Battle of Anghiari, will be found in the near future. Finally! This painting is said to be Da Vinci's greatest work and researchers claim it is far more important than The Last Supper and the Mona Lisa.

All that's very nice, but I'm more than a bit concerned. You see the researchers suspect that the lost mural is still on a wall which was painted over with another valuable Renaissance mural. And so they are now developing a portable neutron-beam scanner that they hope will see past the visible mural to the one they suspect is there.

I don't like this at all. Sure these researchers will find the occasional long lost masterpiece, but I bet they'll spend the rest of their time using this device for less noble purposes. Think about it; mankind has been searching for the secret of X-ray vision ever since the inception of Marvel Comics. Need I remind you of the X-ray vision glasses they sold in the back pages of the comic book – the ones that my mother never let me buy even though I promised that if I had a pair I wouldn't ever wear them around my older sister's friends or at the public pool?

Yes, there wasn't a pre-pubescent boy alive who didn't long for a pair of these. But, back then, times were hard. No one had the $1.49, plus shipping and handling, to make X-ray vision a reality. And so our youth was wasted.

Once, we almost did it. We gathered the money between several of members of our road hockey club, but eight weeks later, when our package arrived, some postal worker had replaced the product with cheap cardboard glasses that didn't have the X-ray capability that the ad promised. By the way, the very same thing happened with the Sea Monkeys we ordered.

Forget flight, time travel, or the Platinum satellite package, the power of X-ray vision has always been one of mankind's greatest dreams. Now, this group of researchers has it within their grasp. Oh sure, they say it will just be used to recover great works of art for the advancement of mankind, but I think we all know better.

This gift is far too tempting for any one mortal man (although if it were to be bestowed upon me, say after being struck by lightning while fly fishing with a graphite rod and wearing polarized glasses, I'd promise to use it responsibly). No, you'd start off innocently enough, looking for artwork, but eventually, you'd give in to the dark side and start looking at people to see if anyone has interesting birthmarks.

Okay, let's be honest, why would anyone want to search for 450-year-old paintings if they could do this? The answer is that they wouldn't. No sir, they'd be visiting places where attractive people jump on trampolines instead. That's just human nature.

What's got me real nervous is that I'm not sure what a portable neutron-beam scanner looks like. Is it small enough to fit on regular glasses that don't look too geeky? How portable is portable? Does it make a funny noise when it's powered up? Can I buy one locally? And for how much?

I won't feel comfortable until I know the answers. In the mean time, I'm staying away from trampolines and doubling up on underwear.

It might work, but it's not fair

OLD DELAHANTY is so excited he almost forgets to eat the gooseberry scones piled high on his plate.

He has one of his rants all rehearsed and a tableful of old political hacks to try it out on at their table in the tearoom of the Sapsucker Arms.

But the old fellow hasn't quite forgotten about his baked goods. He is talking with his mouth full, spewing a mix of scone crumbs and adverbs that The Brown Dog Jiggs tries to sort as they fly through the air.

The crumbs taste better than the adverbs.

"So now you've made it official," he says, scowling at Grit, the Honourable Member for Soccer Moms. "This is a market economy first and a democracy only as an after-thought."

"And just as a cigarette smoked by a bond-dealer leaves no tar on his lungs, the vent from a oil furnace in Rosedale spews only pure oxygen."

"What in the world are you talking about?" asks Grit who is squeezed in at the tearoom table between Tory, the Honourable Member for the 19th Century whose first name is not John, and Lefty, the Honourable Member for Toronto's Chattering Classes.

It is an arrangement they are familiar with from all of their years on the back benches at Queen's Park since a moment after time began.

They are cottage guests of Fixx, who has been arranging favours for politicians since a moment after that, and paying for his hospitality by listening to Delahanty's hallucinations.

"I'm talking about your carbon tax," says

Delahanty. "First you tried to tax people out of smoking. Now you've decided to tax them out of polluting."

It might work, but it's not fair." Fixx rushes to Grit's defence. "In the first place, that's coming out of Ottawa, not Toronto, so it has nothing to do with Grit. In the second place, what's not fair?"

The waitress Gretchen, who has been waiting patiently to set down a fresh platter of scones, chips in.

"What's not fair is that in a democracy every citizen is supposed to share equally in the sacrifices that have to be made for the common good," she says.

"This looks more like stealing from the poor to feed the rich," says Lefty. "The working poor, if any of them are still working, will have to choose between eating and heating."

"But your working poor already are making those choices, even without a carbon tax," says Fixx. "People have to drive to work to earn enough money to drive to work."

Delahanty has refuted. "But that's the market, for better or worse. Poor people have always been trampled by the market; the government shouldn't be doing it too."

"If you have enough money, taxes on pollution and smoking are only a nuisance. They bear no direct relationship to the taxpayer's ability to pay and take no account of the pain they inflict."

Winter delivered and so did HCSA

THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT that this past winter witnessed a substantial turnaround for winter tourism in Haliburton County. Long known as a snowmobiling Mecca, Haliburton suffered the past few seasons from not much snow and some issues with snowmobile trail quality.

Thanks to a reinvigorated board of directors and what amounts to the biggest snow fall and longest riding season in memory, the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association delivered superb quality groomed trails for more than 16 weeks this season. The momentum continued to build in favour of the HCSA and Haliburton County as the winter wore on.

Touring snowmobilers riding from as far south as Barrie, Lindsay and even the Ottawa Valley made Haliburton their destination as the news of great trails, great grooming and tons of snow spread.

HCSA trails chair Peter Zahn says,

GUEST COLUMN

Mark Lester

"We re-doubled our efforts as a snowmobile association and determined we would provide the best product. We wanted to deliver the economic impact Haliburton County businesses depend on in the winter season. It's a simple equation – our members buy OFSC trail permits to ride great trails. The businesses who support us want those same trails to bring snowmobilers to their establishments. Everyone in the tourism sector knows snowmobilers spend big dollars on their sport. In short, great trails equal increased tourism dollars for the county."

Haliburton village was full of snowmobiles most winter weekends. Restaurants saw increased numbers of snowmobilers – proof positive were parking lots full of sleds every weekend. The access into Haliburton village for sleds is absolutely key to this success.

Decision on doctor's licence up to college

Decisions such as this are made by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons of which elected representatives do not have the authority to overturn.

I would like to add that, despite these challenges, the physicians and staff at the Haliburton Family Health Team as well as Dr. Paul Hasson deserve recognition for the work they've done to help alleviate some of the strain resulting from this situation.

I appreciate this opportunity to respond and clarify these points.

Kudos to our doctors

To the Editor:

I read with great interest the reasons why our health care in Haliburton County is "around the clock," which most of us would not necessarily be aware of.

Kudos to all our doctors in this county for providing us with an excellent health-care system. This article, in itself, is the reason why all the citizens in our area should donate what we can to the Haliburton Highlands Health Services.

There was something for everyone at Dorset Heritage Day on Saturday. The skies stayed dry most of the morning and afternoon, and both the museum and community centre had lots of different exhibits to offer. Above, Phil Ward, left, and Will McConnell came dressed in their battle finest. The re-enactors were representing the 35th battalion, company #6, which served from 1886-1907 in Muskoka.

County could soon crack down on signage

Tighter bylaw will be proposed at next week's meeting of county council

by JENN WATT
Times Staff

Commercial signs on county roads will be far scarcer if changes to the sign bylaw are passed at county council July 23.

At the roads committee meeting Wednesday, director Doug Ray introduced modified restrictions to those who want to advertise on county roads in an effort to reduce sign pollution and increase driver safety.

"We're seeing a proliferation of billboard signs at shared locations that we inherited when we got the highways," Ray said at the meeting.

Amendments to the bylaw include no longer granting individual space or shared space for signs on county road allowances; demanding that property owners who sell private space for signs allow county workers on their property to remove signs; allowing only one sign per business per direction on each county road; and denial of sign company requests for space on road allowances.

In addition, A-frame or "sandwich board" signs would be allowed for short periods of time to advertise new or limited-time services.

Ray noted that as more businesses move into the area, A-frame signs are being requested more and more, particularly when the business is not visible from the road.

"Businesses are requesting signs for urban areas and developments are requesting them in rural areas," he said, noting the signs for the Silver Beach condo development and Wigamog Inn on County Road 21.

"The problem is that without a permit [system] they put whatever they want out," said Roy Haig, engineering co-ordinator. This can lead to problems when the wording is too small to read from the road.

The shared location clause in the current sign bylaw will be removed if the proposed amendments pass at the next council meeting, with a grandfathering provision that those who have already purchased sign space will have five years before they must be removed. No signs will be permitted after that time.

Minden must improve snowmobile trail or lose the business

Doug Mahood, HCSA past president says, "No one missed the point in Haliburton village this winter – if you were out for a ride in or around the HCSA trail system then you went to Haliburton for gas, food and accommodation. The impact of snowmobilers on the town this winter was profound."

While snowmobiling was a bright light in Haliburton's embattled tourism economy the town of Minden lost ground in a winter which should have seen increased economie activity from snowmobilers. Clearly the town is suffering from a profound lack of access for snowmobiles. Zahn says it's a struggle to navigate Minden on a snowmobile. "We're increasingly hearing from snowmobilers – anxious to get food, fuel and accommodation – that Minden is impossible to access. What's worse is the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs (OFSC) Trans Ontario Provincial (TOPS) B trail is routed through the town.

"This means snowmobilers end up stranded outside of town or even worse, lost in town riding bare streets and sidewalks attempting to find the trail. Ultimately they end up bypassing Minden and heading for Haliburton, Carnarvon and Kinmount instead of leaving their money in Minden."

The problem with access relates to the year-after-year need to move the trail – which is totally dependent on the automobile bridge to cross the Gull River. This is as a result of development and closed access routes.

The answer, says Mahood, is a dedicated recreational bridge positioned at a point which would provide long-term access from both sides of the river. "Bracebridge has had a removable snowmobile bridge across the Muskoka River for more than a decade. At the end of the snowmobile season the bridge splits, swings against shore and can be used as an effective public dock," Mahood says.

Zahn says, "We need fresh thinking and a renewed understanding of the need to embrace tourists in Minden. This attitude has to come from both the town council and the business community."

The HCSA is facing a crisis of sorts with the Minden TOPS trail issue. The OFSC, which sanctions all public snowmobile trails in Ontario, is pressuring the HCSA to elevate the TOPS B trail into Minden to provincial standards or move the trail completely away from the town – effectively ending snowmobile access and further stifling the winter economic impact for Minden. It was only a few years ago Minden was known in the minds of the OFSC's 100,000-plus members as one of the snowmobile-friendliest towns in Ontario.

With OFSC trail permit sales in a solid upswing and the HCSA's reputation dramatically improving the past two seasons there are good things ahead for winter tourism in Haliburton County. Minden needs to return to snowmobile-friendly access and capitalize on this momentum.

Highland Yard runs for campers

by JENN WATT
Times Staff

It is a 37-year-old Minden tradition that gets bigger and stronger every year.

Fusing the endeavours of two local camps together, the Highland Yard benefits AMICI, a charity started by Kilcoo Camp.

"It was actually a bunch of Kilcoo guys with my dad, John Latimer, who as an alumni association said we've got a lot out of camps, so let's do something for other people. So they started this organization called AMICI," said Dave Latimer, director of Kilcoo Camp just south of Minden.

"It sends kids to camp ... but camps all over Ontario. There's only five or six [sponsored kids] that go to Kilcoo and the rest go to Ontario Camping Association camps all over Ontario," he said.

AMICI, which is Latin for friendship, started by sending just one child to camp when it started in 1966. This year, 126 kids between the ages of eight and 16 will be sent to camp by the registered charity that raises money by hosting the five- and 10-kilometre road race on the civic holiday weekend along with five other events around the province.

Twenty-two Ontario camps participate in the program (including Kilcoo, Onondaga, Kandalore, Wanakita and Medeba), which sponsors kids year after year as long as they are of age. AMICI's executive director, Kate Horton, says 85 per cent of sponsored kids return to camp the next year.

Money raised by the Highland Yard race goes to AMICI (Latin for friendship) which helps kids go to summer camp, that otherwise don't have the chance. The race starts at 6 p.m. on Minden's Main Street, but organizers will be on hand at 5 p.m. for registration.

"The camps are not only our biggest partner in size, but also our biggest financial supporters," Horton said. The camps subsidize each camper by up to 45 per cent then the family and AMICI fill in the rest.

At Kilcoo Camp, between 30 and 40 campers are subsidized this summer through a variety of camp charities.

"The main thing is you're trying to help them build self-esteem, feeling good about themselves and being able to carry that on. The idea is what they learn at camp will take them not only through a year, but through a lifetime," Latimer said.

The race is open to all runners and is a class "A" race by the Ontario Runners Association, which means it has paramedics on site, water stations, verified distances and prizes for top runners, among other things.

Registration for the Highland Yard starts on Minden's Main Street at 5 p.m. with the start of the race at 6 p.m. There will be a post-race party at the Dominion Hotel from 7:30 p.m. onward. Those participating in the five-kilometre run will cover part of Deep Bay Road and the McKay subdivision. The 10-kilometre run does the same area, but goes to Fleming Road. There is also a team race. During the race, all of that area will be shut down to traffic.

Those who wish to participate in the Highland Yard are asked to register online: www.amicicharity.org, but runners can also register at the event on August 1. Sponsors of the event include Hydro One, Investors Group, the Running Room, and Canoe FM.

'I'm very proud of them,' says fire chief Doug Schell

"Terry told me to call 911," said Derek who remained on the phone with the dispatcher while Terry and Reynolds headed into the water.

Terry and Reynolds had the car nearly tilted on its side when Tom Jr. and Black arrived, but the car doors were locked. Instinctively, Reynolds kicked the right passenger window and smashed it, enabling them to reach in and unlock the front passenger door.

"This guy, as far as I was concerned, he had drowned," said Tom Jr. "He was face down in the water inside the car and totally lifeless. We have no idea how many seconds or how many minutes the car had actually been in the water before Terry got to it. He was probably in the water long enough that he should not be alive today."

"This is the first time I've ever done this," Reynolds told the Times. "The rest of them are all firefighters. They were pretty sure he was a goner."

Without hesitation they pulled Riehl from the car to shore, which was at the bottom of a steep bank. There, Tom Jr. held Riehl's head above the water. Amazingly, before they could move him into position to begin mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, Riehl began to breathe on his own.

However, he was still unconscious and non-responsive, which was worrisome for the men who continued to search the vehicle for possible passengers.

Just as the ambulance arrived Riehl regained consciousness and told his rescuers that he had been alone in the vehicle.

Not much is known at this time about Riehl or his injuries but Tom Jr. and Reynolds said he was able to walk to the ambulance with little help.

Back at the Minden fire hall the men were commended for their efforts and were being called heroes by their peers.

Matt James/TIMES

A backpack floats in Minden Lake shortly after a 24-year-old man lost control of his vehicle and plunged into the water. Amazingly the young man suffered only minor injuries after being found inside the vehicle unconscious.

"If this is what feeling like a hero is like I don't ever want to be a hero again," said Tom Jr. who credits Terry and Reynolds as the true heroes as they were first on the scene. "Davis Reynolds is just a kid, but he acted like a man today."

But the reality of the accident is that it took five individuals, luck and timing to save one man, even if it took Riehl awhile to realize the truth.

"He thought he got himself out [of the car]," said Reynolds. "That's what he told the ambulance driver."

Later that evening, Tom Jr. talked briefly to Riehl by phone. Riehl was out of the hospital and grateful for the men's efforts.

Both Minden fire chief Doug Schell and Haliburton Highlands OPP Const. Mark McMaster are looking into bravery awards for the men involved.

"Quick thinking and quick decisions - they did everything perfectly," says Schell. "I'm very proud of them."

It's both. Be Bear Wise.

Spending time outdoors? Remember that you're in the natural habitat of black bears.

Don't attract black bears:

1. Make noise as you travel through wooded areas

While the chance of you seeing or encountering a black bear is low, it is best to be prepared -

- Do not approach the bear
- Slowly back away
- Do not turn and run

In an immediate emergency call your local police or 911.

DANGER: "Runaway" Runway $$$$

The proposed Cross Wind Runway at Stanhope "Haliburton County" Airport is a Major Concern for County Permanent & Seasonal Residents.

YOU WILL PAY. This development will cost county taxpayers dearly. The proposed Cross Wind Runway will cost $2.8 million. Every county taxpayer will pay for this project.

THE TRACK RECORD IS DISMAL. Most small airports, including Oshawa, Lindsay, Simcoe County, Muskoka and Peterborough airports, all lost 5 and 6 figure dollar amounts in 2007. Taxpayers pick up the bill.

THE ECONOMIC BENEFIT IS NOT PROVEN.

There are no commitments or viable plans for economic development at the airport and possible users have not indicated any interest or need for this runway.

BE HEARD. Contact your councilor or reeve. Tell them you want the "Runaway" Runway stopped. Be heard. It's your money that's being discussed. Where do you want your tax money to go? A runway? Emergency services? Speak up now!

The Haliburton Highlands Quilt Guild sponsored a mariner's compass and double wedding ring workshop on Thursday, July 10 at the Minden Lions Club Building. The instructor was Sue Carmichael from the Quilters Cupboard in Uxbridge. She showed the group how to make these two quilt styles much easier than the traditional method.

Charlene Cooper shows the start of her mariner's compass and the instructor, Sue Carmichael displays what the finished project will look like. A larger version of the same design hangs on the wall.

There's a new truck in town

Myles Gartshore, deputy fire chief, tests the lights and sirens on the new tanker pumper in the parking lot in behind the fire hall.

Minden has added a brand new fire truck to its fleet. The tanker-pumper can hold a significant amount of water, and can also pump the water if needed as a back-up. The fire department has four other trucks that are currently in use, including two pumpers, one rescue vehicle, and a pickup truck. The new tanker pumper is a replacement for a 1987 vehicle, and is a 2008 International 4400 cab and chassis. Tuesday the fire department had many of the volunteers come out to see the new truck and get acquainted with some of its many gadgets.

Local projects can help doctor shortage: MPP

by LAURIE SCOTT

MPP - Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock

My office staff and I receive many calls, letters and e-mails from residents who are dealing with the fact that they do not have a family doctor. There are a number of reasons for this, which may include physician retirement, closed practices or a physician moving to a different community.

Many constituents believe that we will be able to find them a doctor but if there is not another doctor in the area accepting new patients, this is an impossible request.

According to the Ontario Medical Association (OMA) there is an estimated shortage of approximately 2,000 doctors in Ontario. The OMA adds that nearly 2,600 Ontario physicians are over 65 years old and are either reducing their number of patients, or are close to retiring.

I understand the concerns residents have and am certainly aware of the need for family doctors in Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock. Each of the areas in the riding is faced with healthcare challenges, including doctor shortages.

Despite these challenges we have also seen communities, local elected officials and residents work together towards successful endeavours. These success stories are based on commitment, hard work and creative programs where the focus is not only physician recruitment, but physician retention is as equally important.

The Kawartha Lakes Health Care Initiative (KLHCI) has shown great leadership on this front, and is a vital link to our success in physician recruitment and retention. Physician recruitment and retention coordinator, Cindy Snider, works closely with a number of community partners as well as liaising with the Ministry of Health and Long Term Care.

The end goal is to work to ensure all residents have access to timely and universal health care when needed, and as quickly as possible.

This is a good example of what is being done at the local level to help provide residents with family doctors. Provincially we can do more, and that is why the Official Opposition recently put forward an OMA-recommended resolution, a plan which includes:

- Implementing a physician resource and recruitment plan;
- Deferring the debt repayment for Ontario medical residents; and
- Providing flexible alternatives to retirement in order to retain experienced physicians.

I would hope that the McGuinty Liberals will work with the OMA, as well as the College of Physicians and Surgeons, to better serve Ontarians looking for a family doctor, and implement the resolution.

It seems most unfair that Ontarians are forced to continue paying the health tax, despite the fact that almost 850,000 – including more than 35,000 in Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock – are without a family doctor.

Explore Stanhope's heritage this weekend

Sixth annual Heritage Day promises history exhibits, live music, antique cars and playful critters

STANHOPE LIFE

Gina Atkinson

489-1397 pine_reflections@yahoo.ca

Since my last column I celebrated my birthday. Yes, everybody gets them, even me. In my case it was dragged out over a few days. There was a time when I would have been mortified if someone gave me a surprise party. I still don't want them but have developed a sense of humour about it.

There is also the confusion of what's worse, someone forgetting your birthday or centering you out on it. Admit it, we all have a mental list of expected calls.

Yes, birthdays can be fun. I e-mailed my sister-in-law and reminded her just in case she forgot. I try to help others avoid those awkward moments. It's good for a laugh.

Thanks, friends and family – you almost make getting older a little less painful!

This Saturday is the 6th Annual Stanhope Heritage Day at the museum grounds, 1123 North Shore Road. This will be their grand reopening after a winter of renovating the museum's exhibits.

Between the hours of 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. they have a day that is full of activities, displays and also Gord Kidd and Friends will be there to entertain between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

For you antique car enthusiasts there will be cars on display from the Haliburton Time Travellers.

There is a bake sale, barbecue lunch and more.

Canoe FM will be on site live from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. featuring music, interviews and special features. It will be your opportunity to be part of an audience and see live radio being made.

If that wasn't enough to tempt you, the Muskoka Wildlife Centre is there at 11 a.m. with some of their "pets." Because of this organizers request you leave your pets at home.

Admission is $2 at the gate; don't miss this fun filled day! If you need some more information call Betty at 489-3021 or visit www.stanhopemuseum.on.ca.

Hot off the press! Early notice for you – the first ever Haliburton County Garlic Fest will be held rain or shine August 7 between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. It will take place right here in Carnarvon at the Carnarvon Bowl. More information will follow at a later date.

Well, between rain and rain we do get a few sunny days. So my reminder for our cottagers is that a rainy day at the cottage is better than a sunny day in the city.

Have a great week!

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC MEETING
PROPOSED ZONING BY-LAW AMENDMENT
(Township of Algonquin Highlands – General Amendment)

TAKE NOTICE that the Council for The Corporation of the Township of Algonquin Highlands will be holding a 2nd a public meeting under the Planning Act, R.S.O. 1990, C.P. 13, as amended, to inform the public of a proposed Amendment to the Zoning By-law that has been initiated by the Township of Algonquin Highlands.

DATE AND LOCATION OF PUBLIC MEETING:

Date: Thursday, July 17, 2008
Time: 9:00 a.m.
Location: Township of Algonquin Highlands Municipal Office (Council Chambers)
1123 North Shore Road, Minden, ON Applicant: Township of Algonquin Highlands

PURPOSE OF THE MEETING:

To ensure that sufficient information is made available to enable the public to generally understand the Zoning Amendment that is being considered by Council. Any person who attends the meeting shall be afforded an opportunity to make representations in respect of the Amendment. Council will then use the information collected at this meeting to make a decision on this matter.

DETAILS OF THE ZONING BY-LAW AMENDMENT:

Council has reviewed components of comprehensive Zoning By-law 03-22 enacted on June 12, 2003 and wishes to consider some amendments. The purpose of the amendments is to address specific issues raised since the approval of the Zoning By-law in 2003 and the approval of the Township Official Plan in 2005. The effects of the amendment largely apply to the township as a whole and are generally of a "housekeeping" nature.

The following revisions to the Zoning By-law are proposed:

- definitions for "DEVELOPMENT" and "SHORELINE BUFFER" are added and the definition for "LOT FRONTAGE" is revised;
- the general provision regarding the allowable projection of a porch, balcony or patio into a required yard is revised;
- the side yard setbacks for shoreline structures is revised to stipulate the setback also applies from the projection of the side lot line into the water;
- sleeping cabins to also be permitted in Rural Residential (RR) and Hamlet Residential (HR) Zones;
- a parking requirement of 2 spaces per unit is added for residential uses;
- addition of a general provision requiring a 20 m (66 ft.) deep shoreline buffer of natural vegetation be maintained along the waterfront save and except 30% of the frontage to a maximum of 20 metres (66 feet);
- the minimum setback from the regulated high-water mark is increased to 23 m (75 ft.) for buildings and structures and 30 m (100 ft.) for tile fields on existing lots;
- the minimum setback from the regulated high-water mark is increased to 30 m for buildings and structures and tile fields on newly created lots on cold water fishery lakes that are moderately or highly sensitive to additional development;
- the minimum lot area for lots abutting coldwater fishery lakes at capacity is established as that lot area which exists as of the date of adoption;
- a tourist establishment be added to the permitted uses in the Highway Commercial (C1) Zone;
- three areas of crown land be rezoned from Rural (RU) to Environmental Protection (EP) to reflect new information about their environmental importance;
- clarification of the general provision for the reconstruction, relocation, renovation, enlargement or repair of an existing building or structure on a lot that does not comply with the yard and setback requirements; and
- addition of a general provision permitting the reconstruction of any lawful non-complying building or structure, which is damaged by causes beyond the control of the owner, provided the height, size or volume of the building or structure is not increased.

If a person or public body does not make oral submissions at a public meeting or make written submissions to the Township of Algonquin Highlands before the proposed zoning by-law amendment is adopted, the person or public body is not entitled to appeal the decision of the Council of the Township of Algonquin Highlands to the Ontario Municipal Board.

If a person or public body does not make oral submissions at a public meeting or make written submissions to the Township of Algonquin Highlands before the proposed zoning by-law amendment is adopted, the person or public body may not be added as a party to the hearing of an appeal before the Ontario Municipal Board unless, in the opinion of the Board, there are reasonable grounds to add the person or public body as a party.

If you wish to be notified of the adoption of the proposed zoning by-law amendment, you must make a written request to the Township of Algonquin Highlands, at the address noted below.

Additional information regarding the proposed zoning by-law amendment is available to the public for inspection at the Township of Algonquin Highlands Office during normal office hours (8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.).

Flower show blooms this weekend

It is time for the Minden and District Horticultural Society's Annual Flower Show.

For 29 years the members have been exhibiting the very best their gardens have to offer. The weather nor the insects will deter them.

Please come to the Minden Community Centre on Friday, July 25, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. or on Saturday, July 26, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

At the beautiful garden setting in the front lobby you will be greeted and directed through to the show; last year there were over 300 exhibits. After you have tickled your sense (smell and sight) and have visited our market place, which will offer a variety of related products, sit a while and have tea, coffee or a cold drink of lemonade and of course delectable goodies.

There will also be a gift table full of wonderful door prizes donated by the members.

All of this for only $5 each (children 12 and younger free).

While you are there, why not visit the quilt show going on next door at the curling club? You don't even have to move your car, which can be parked for free.

Do come and enjoy both shows – you will not be disappointed.

For more information, call Linda Pentney at 286-2261 or Jessie Geall at 286-6505.

Paying doctor recruiter may be next step

tus of Dr. Bennet Wu, awareness of the doctor shortage in Minden has intensified. Some residents wonder whether they will be forced to travel to Haliburton for primary health care.

Right now, the county is looking for four more doctors and a nurse practitioner.

Minden Hills has been designated an under-served area by the Ontario ministry of health and long-term care, which means that the area has less than one doctor per 1,380 permanent residents. That doesn't count the seasonal cottagers and tourists during the summer months. Minden isn't technically the only under-served region in the county, Archibald said, but because of the large amount of paperwork necessary to receive the designation, Algonquin Highlands and Highlands East have yet to complete the process.

With the under-served designation comes $15,000 over four years for a full-time physician to relocate, which may help attract a doctor to the area, but Minden still needs to deal with the circular logic that you need a base of doctors before you can recruit new doctors.

Dr. Bob Heyes of Haliburton comes to the Minden Medical Centre to see some of his Minden patients twice a month (as does Dr. Mike Armstrong). He says it's hard to find a doctor who will be happy working alone in a private practice. That's why the team of nine doctors in Haliburton's family practice has been so successful.

"I know in our group we're here because of each other. You need a critical mass of physicians to attract others. ... I think in Minden it's often been solo practitioners and that's not as attractive to younger physicians that want group practice with mutual support so when they go on a holiday or want a night off one of their colleagues will cover them," said Dr. Heyes, who has been working as a doctor in the Highlands since 1973 when he joined Dr. Harry Good's practice.

"If a new physician came, there would be a lot of unattached patients and it would be an opportunity for a new physician to develop a practice. And the space [in Minden] is there and the space is very, very nice," he said.

Jim Mitchell, chairperson of the recruitment committee, echoes Dr. Heyes's statements. While the committee works to introduce doctors to the county, Mitchell said it's up to the physicians to choose a location to practice, and working with other professionals is often the more attractive option.

"We have no influence over where people work or what form," Mitchell said. "When we're out there, we tell them there are all sorts of options from a full-time emergency physician in the hospitals to practising as part of a clinic to setting up a private practice to working part-time. There are all sorts of permutations and combinations."

The 13-member recruitment committee is composed entirely of volunteers. It participates in Ontario recruitment fairs at the five main medical schools, goes to medical conferences, advertises in medical journals and arranges community visits for interested health professionals. Most recently, Mitchell said, they have placed advertising with cottage associations and have received very positive feedback.

Not only is it tough to lure doctors to small-town Ontario, Mitchell said, we're also fighting a provincial shortage of 2,500 doctors.

"There are approximately 140 designated under-served areas in Ontario. Almost all of those are looking for family doctors. More than 2,500 doctors in Ontario are 65 or older and that's a huge pool of doctors that could retire any day," Mitchell said. Only 700 doctors graduate a year in Ontario, which is "nowhere near the need."

Mitchell agrees with Archibald that a paid physician recruiter could do the county some good, though he was unsure if the cost would be worth it.

"We may have more success if we have someone on it full time. Whether the county can afford that, I don't know and I'm not sure other than getting out to more of these things what else you can do if you're doing it full time and professionally," he said.

With a committee made entirely of volunteers though, it may be the only way to get to more events.

Of course, there's always the chance that ideal doctor will just show up one day eager to heal all that ails the county, which is what Dr. Heyes hopes for.

"I'm an eternal optimist and I always think that somebody's going to walk in the door tomorrow and say I want to move to Haliburton and I'm 30 years old and I've got 30 years to practise and I'll go to Wilberforce, I'll go to Minden, and I'll split my time up evenly between the three areas. I'll work emergency shifts," he said.

Next week the series on the physician shortage will continue with Kinmount's campaign for a third country doctor.

Haliburton Highlands Water Trails Day

Saturday, July 12 marked the 3rd annual Haliburton Highlands Water Trails Day.

While Mark Coleman, the trails co-ordinator for the Township of Algonquin Highlands, believes the forecast and competing weekend events kept the numbers low, he was happy with the turnout. Participants enjoyed a guided hike in the morning with volunteer co-ordinator Peter Brogden and a forest full of mosquitoes.

Water Trails manages two Crown land jewels known as the Frost Centre Area and the Poker Lakes, which are popular with canoeists and hikers in the summer, and snowshoers and skiers in the winter. Water Trails' mandate is to protect and improve these lake and forest routes.

Water Trails Day lets people learn about what's around them. Coleman says the event has evolved to a more educational theme. This year a number of organizations and individuals took part, such as the Ministry of Natural Resources' Bear Wise and Fire Smart programs, the Stanhope Heritage Museum, the Moose Lake Ontario Rangers, Wilderness Medical Associates, and photographer Wayne Bridge. But all of the above were in stiff competition with the silent auction and a smorgasbord of a barbecue.

Rescheduled Moonlight Mania is this Saturday

Due to last Saturday's weather forecast, Kinmount's Moonlight Mania, sponsored by the Kinmount and Area Business Association, had to be rescheduled to this Saturday, July 19 from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. along Main Street. There will be lots of family fun and activities, with live music to put a spring in your step. Vendor spots are still available and can be reserved by calling 488-2919. See you there.

Kinmount United Church will be holding its annual yard sale this Saturday, July 19 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the railway station with great bargains for everyone. While shopping, be sure to visit the farmers' market, with fresh produce, home baking, preserves and much more. Then head to the railway station where you can meet watercolour artist Donna Stover, a permanent resident with her home/studio on beautiful Salmon Lake. She will welcome visitors to her display of work both Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. as part of the Artist in the Station summer series. As well, in the station the model railroad continues to wind its way along the route from Kinmount to Haliburton circa 1920 surrounded by photos and artifacts from those early days.

Here is a fun event for you and your pet on Saturday, July 19 as the Minden Animal Hospital celebrates the second annual Wuffstock from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. This important fundraiser is held in support of the Minden Emergency Animal Care. The program will include a dog and car wash, twoonie draw, doggy demonstrations and, new this year, a drawing contest for kids under 12 with the winning entry to be included in the 2009 MEAC calendar. There will also be refreshments available for purchase on site at the hospital.

Vendors are still being offered spaces at the Kinmount seniors yard sale coming up by the railroad station on Saturday, August 2 (rain date August 3) from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information please contact 488-1110.

Pledge forms are now available for the annual Journey for Health on Sunday, August 10 in support of the work of the Kinmount and District Health Services Foundation to purchase equipment and meet other needs related to the exciting expansion of the health centre. Forms can be picked up at the health centre, Kinmount Pharmacy, Kawartha Credit Union (Kinmount branch) or by calling Vic at 488-3053.
